

The contention of the two famous Houses,

Ah valiant Lord, the Duke of Yorke is slaine.

Edw. Ah Warwic's, Warwicke, that Plantagenet
Which held thee deere: I, euen as his soules redemption,
Is by the sterne Lord Clifford, done to death.

War. Ten dayes ago I drown'd those newes in teares,
And now to adde more measure to your woes:
I come to tell you newes since then befallne,
After the bloody fray at Wakefield fought,
Where your braue father breath'd his latest gaspe,
Tydings as swiftly as the post could runne,
Was brought me of your losse, and his departure,
I then in London, keeper of the King,
Mustred my soldiers, gathered flockes of friends,
And very well appointed as I thought,
Marcht to S. Albons to intercept the Queene,
Bearing the King in my behalfe along.
For by my scouts I was aduertised,
That she was comming, with a full intent
To dash your late decree in Parliament,
Touching King Henries heires, and your succession.
Short tale to make, we at Saint Albons met,
Our battailes ioyn'd, and both sides fiercely fought:
But whether 'twas the coldnesse of the King,
(He look'd full gently on his warlike Queene)
That rob'd my souldiers of their heated spleene.
Or whether 'twas report of his successe,
Or more then common feare of Cliffords rigour,
Who thunders to his Captaines blood and death,
I cannot tell. But to conclude with truth,
Their weapons like to lightnings went and came.
Our souldiers, like the Night-Owles lazy flight,
Or like an ydle Thresher with a flaile,
Fell gently downe, as if they smote their friends.
I cheer'd them vp with iustice of the cause,
With promise of hye pay, and great rewards:
But all in vaine, they had no hearts to fight,
Nor we in them no hope to win the day.
